Comments on the Kalser's Coolness in Riding the Streets Yesterday.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—The City to-day is far more tranquil than it has been for two days past. Up to this hour (3.30 o'clock) there have been no disorders. The numbers of have much better control, and several small been no disorders. The authorities gatherings were easily dispersed.

The streets are crowded, but the people are animated chiefly with curiosity to look upon the destruction wrought by the mobs. The police are vigilant, and though no further disturbances are anticipated they keep the crowds moving and will allow of the holding of no meetings on the streets.

Throughout the morning and the early part of the afternoon small gatherings were continually forming in the Unter-den-Linden and in the square between the Museum and the Castle. The police speedily dispersed them. meeting with no resistance to speak of, and prevented any obstruction to tradic. The crowd attempted to hold no large meeting.
